"WE are engaged this year in a movement to keep our business at home. We have discovered that if we don't keep our business, our business will not keep us."—Governor McKinley at Buffalo, October 25.

To Workmen and Business Men.

The leaders of the Free Trade Democracy, including President Cleveland and W. L. Wilson, have declared that the fight to tear down our tariff defenses has only begun. A vote for John A. Howard for Congress is a vote to renew the agitation, with all its accompanying business uncertainty and industrial depression. A vote for Captain Dovenor is a vote to save the country from a repetition of the misery which followed the inauguration of the assault on the tariff, and a vote for the Republican candidates for the legislature will mean the same thing.

At Senator Camden's lumber mills at Camden-on-the-Gauley wages have been reduced one-third in the past year. Is Senator Camden a "clammy howler"? Or has he done this to force his men to vote the Republican ticket?

Mr. Howard and Labor.

Mr. Howard and his friends lay great stress on the fact that he used to be a glass worker and is still a member of the American Flint Glass Workers' Union. For that reason he and they urge that he should have the support of wage-earners in general and of all glass-workers in particular.

Mr. Howard stands on the Democratic platform declaration that all protection is a violation of the constitution of the United States. He stands by the Wilson-Gorman bill and will continue to stand by it until his party goes further in the direction of free trade, and then he will continue to be with his party.

See what the American Flints said to the ways and means committee of the house of representatives in 1890:

"The causes that enable so much foreign glassware to be imported into the United States to the detriment of the home industry are the cheaper labor of foreign countries and the inadequacy of the duty levied on the goods."

"From the most reliable data obtainable on the subject the cost of labor in the German states whence the bulk of these goods is imported may be set down at one-third of the cost in the United States, that of Great Britain at five-eighths, and that of France at a medium between that of the German states and that of Great Britain."

"This vast difference in the cost of labor between foreign countries and the United States makes it almost impossible for the home product to compete against foreign-made goods in the markets of the United States under the present duty."

"To give the home product an equal chance to compete in United States markets against the foreign product, we think the duty on foreign-made goods should be increased."

Note what President Smith of the American Flints says to-day:

"I need not tell you that I am a Republican in my political belief, and unalterably opposed to the Democratic doctrine of free trade, whether concealed under the delusive expression of 'a tariff for revenue only,' or disguised by the more catchy title of a system to open the markets of the world to the products of American labor."

"My ideas of protection, for glass particularly, have been derived not from theory but from experience in our efforts to keep our members employed."

"As powerful as our association is, it was unable to keep all our members employed simply because the duty on flint glass was so low that American manufacturers could, and did buy foreign glass at prices approximating the cost of labor alone in this country while hundreds of our members were kept in enforced idleness. There can be no doubt among flint glass workers that the Democratic tariff measure which recently became a law has been injurious to their interest directly, having necessitated in a number of departments a lower rate of wages for labor."

Very respectfully yours,

W. J. SMITH.

It may be that Lawyer Howard knows better than the American Flints know what is good for them, but the probability is that the men actively engaged in the industry have a better understanding of the situation and of their own needs than Mr. Howard has. Lawyer Howard finds his inspiration in the policy of his party. The glass-workers get theirs from experience.

When the Register stirred up the Wheeling Electrical Company it caught a Tartar. Furthermore it jumped on men who have always acted with the Register's party, but this did not keep them from making a strong showing of the facts in the case, and that showing answered the assault on Senator Whitaker. Looking the field over towards the close of hostilities, the Register has not had good luck with any of its political ventures this year.

A Great Awakening.

The Republican ticket stands for the American idea of protection. The Democratic ticket stands for the British idea of free trade. The line is distinctly drawn. There is not the least excuse for anybody to go wrong. Every man who is entitled to a vote should have the manliness to vote for that policy which he thinks best for himself, his neighbors and his country.

Every sign encourages the belief that there will be more of this kind of voting than this generation has seen. Men who have never before polled a Republican vote are declaring that this time they intend to vote the straight Republican ticket. They will do this because that ticket represents what they want and the Democratic represents what they do not want.

This is a day of a great awakening in this country. Men are seeing as they never saw before, because they are seeing and feeling what they never saw or felt before. The heaven is working in our own state, and West Virginia will give a good account of herself next Tuesday.

In 1892 a good many men who wanted protection voted for free trade. There will be fewer of that kind this time. Thus far this year voters have shown a disposition to vote for what they want and against what they don't want.

Pile Up the Majorities.

Senator Quay would not be surprised if Pennsylvania were to go Republican this year by 250,000 majority. Nothing will keep down the majority in Pennsylvania except the fact that the protectionists of that state have practically no opposition this year. The Democratic campaign has been made merely to keep up some show of a Democratic organization. The Democratic managers do not wish their party to be entirely blotted out in one election.

Protectionists everywhere should bear in mind that the greater the majorities they pile up the greater the rebuke to the party of free trade. That party deserves a stinging rebuke for its legislation against its own country and in favor of foreign countries, and for its avowed intention to go further on the same bad line.

It looks as though Mr. Cleveland is ungrateful. Didn't Senator Hill rush to his defense in the senate when Democratic defenders were as scarce as angels' visits? If Mr. Cleveland desires Mr. Hill to be elected governor of New York it would be very easy for him to give expression to that lofty sentiment. But he hasn't done it, and it is too late now. A good word would have all the appearance of being forced out of Mr. Cleveland with a stomach pump.

Senator Faulkner Weakened.

Chairman Faulkner, of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, has been claiming the earth, including Wisconsin. Chairman Babcock, of the Republican committee, who has just returned to Washington from Wisconsin, where he lives, drew on Chairman Faulkner $5,000, all or any part of which, or more, he offered to bet with Chairman Faulkner or anybody else that Wisconsin will go Republican, and that by a handsome majority.

Chairman Faulkner did not happen to know of anybody who desired to back his judgment in that way. Mr. Babcock's offer must have made the cold chills run up Mr. Faulkner's back.

To be a qualified voter it is necessary to be a citizen of the United States, to have lived in the state of West Virginia one year, in the county sixty days, and to be a bona fide resident of the precinct in which the voter offers his ballot. He may have been in the precinct but one day and still be qualified to vote there.

The Dead Czar.

The death of the czar of Russia after a lingering and distressing illness will arouse some commiseration of his fate, and yet he was a harsh man to whom, so far as the world knew, pity for the misfortunes of others was a stranger.

During his illness, and when it was thought his soul was about to take its flight, a German newspaper said that he had never shed a tear of pity except over his own misfortunes. It was a hard saying, and yet it is probably true.

The dead czar was a self-willed man, brought up in a bad school. He was in no sense a great man, and in leaving the world he leaves no place hard to fill.

A MORGANTOWN dispatch to the Baltimore Sun represented Mr. C. A. Evans, who has been over the district in the interest of the Pittsburgh Dispatch, as saying that Mr. William L. Wilson would be elected beyond a doubt. In a card Mr. Evans says that this is a falsehood, and adds: "The drift of my observation was that Mr. Wilson would not be elected." The free trade managers are leaving nothing undone to bolster up their cause and stiffen the backbones of their followers.

McKINLEY AND WILSON ABROAD.

In 1890 William McKinley was burned in effigy in the English manufacturing city of Sheffield; but in 1894 William L. Wilson was voted and elected in London because he is the author of a free trade tariff bill. These are significant facts.

RANDOM POLITICAL NOTES.

It is a desperate cause that requires bolstering up by misrepresentations and appeals which are intended to obscure the main issues of a campaign, or to prejudice the minds of voters against candidates representing the opposing cause. It is the Democratic cause in this state which now finds itself in this condition, and there is a frantic endeavor everywhere to turn the tide of protection sentiment the other way. In this district the A. P. A. roorback is being worked for all it is worth. In the Second district, in the eastern panhandle counties, sectional and race prejudices are being appealed to, and in other parts of the state, wherever ex-Confederate soldiers are found in numbers, the cry against pensions is used. And so it goes. Argument having failed, these tactics are resorted to by the desperate politicians of the free trade party. But the A. P. A. bugaboo was sprung too soon. The intelligent masses do not find in it an issue between Republicanism and Democracy, and the absurd attempt to make it appear that the Republican managers are in alliance with a secret order has failed flat, not only in this city but elsewhere in the district. For instance, the Western World, the editor of which is a leading Catholic as well as a Republican, stamps the life out of the roorback when he says:

"The effort to gain the Catholic vote by juggling in his religion is reprehensible. It is only a trick of cunning political schemers. It is a vile, nasty trick, and no Catholic should be such a gullible as to be caught with a hook baited with his religion as the dangling worm to fasten his jaws. The archbishops in their recent conference took no notice of A. P. A. men, and had no advice to give their people about it. As Archbishop Ryan said: 'They were not to be taken into account.' Any Catholic whose vote is asked for on account of his religion should spurn with unmitigated disgust the party who makes the appeal to him. The appeal is corrupt, cowardly, contemptible. The issue before the voter is political, not religious."

This is an indication of how much object the Register's vaporing is having. The boomerang will react upon the Democratic party in whose interest it was thrown. In New York, where Senator Hill started the same infamous story which is being used here, Archbishop Ireland recently took occasion to publicly rebuke the Democratic party for making use of such means to create religious prejudice. When the INTELLIGENCER called attention to the archbishop's remarks, the Register affected to believe that the INTELLIGENCER had misrepresented him, that the rebuke was really intended for the Republicans. A sufficient refutation of the Register's claim may be found in the fact that Archbishop Ireland was present in person on the platform at the great Republican meeting addressed by ex-President Harrison in New York Wednesday night. There are Democrats and Republicans in the A. P. A., as in every other secret order, but the Republican party, the party of the constitution, of civil and religious liberty, has no alliance with them. The issue of protection versus free trade is the question between the parties. The cause of neither can be advanced by stirring up political prejudices.

Of the methods which are being resorted to in other portions of the state to obscure the main question and excite the passions of men, perhaps the most unpatriotic and despicable is the attack being made in certain sections upon the ex-Union soldiers. Allen O. Myers, of Ohio, whose methods in politics have never been above reproach, has been stumping the Third district in John D. Alderson's behalf, and in his speeches at some points has made some violent remarks on this line. In Pocahontas county last week he assaulted the men who fought to preserve the Union in the following language: "We Democrats are paying them for their patriotism and they are voting the Republican ticket. They had better treat us Rebels right or we'll kick and pension none but Democrats. Lord, but would not these patriots crawl over one another to get into the Democratic party?" The paper reporting Myers' speech does not say whether this brutal speech drew any applause. I have too firm a belief in the manhood of the Confederate soldier to believe that there were any brave men who would even endorse it. It is unfortunate for the Democracy of this state that Allen O. Myers was brought address the intelligent voters of West Virginia.

At this writing, with the election only four days off, it is not easy to size up the exact situation. The Democracy has of late been making desperate efforts to stem the Republican tide, but it does not appear that they have met with a very great degree of success. The great flourish with which Mr. Wilson started out on his hippodrome tour availed him little, and the effort to start a sweeping tide of free trade enthusiasm proved so dismal a failure that the project was abandoned before the tour as it had been arranged was completed. Reports from throughout that district are to the effect that the protection forces are maintaining a solid front and are confident of winning, while the free traders are correspondingly anxious and doubtful. The exposure of Colonel McGraw's methods, in his attempt to prejudice miners against Mr. Dayton and secure their votes for the man who is pledged to free coal after promising them he wouldn't be, brought from that very shrewd Wilson manager an acknowledgement of the identity of the letter on which the exposure was based, with an attempt to counteract its effect by saying the letter had been stolen. This statement by Colonel McGraw is challenged by Chairman Hall, of the Republican committee, who says that if McGraw will have it sworn to, he will prove the man making the affidavit a perjurer. It would have been better for the colonel's cause had he said nothing.

Hon. Warren Miller is making a gallant fight in the Fourth district, with a good chance of winning. The normal Democratic majority there is very large, but the conditions which are so favorable to protection sentiment prevail in all the counties. The people who voted for a change in 1892, and who now desire to correct the blunder, are everywhere this year, and there are not a few of them in the Fourth district. In the Third district Alderson, the Democratic candidate for Congress, is finding that Huling is no joke. The latter is making one of the most effective campaigns ever witnessed in the Kanawha district. In the great coal regions of that portion of the state the people are stirred up as they have never been before. In an attempt to turn the rising tide of Republicanism the same effort which is being made here to obscure the issues by juggling in outside matters and appealing to prejudice is being resorted to by the free traders. But such cowardice cannot win among the intelligent voters of the district.

Captain Dovenor's chances remain as bright as ever. His campaign has been remarkable for the great crowds which have greeted him at every point. Mr. Howard's appeals to the voters have not availed him much. He is on the wrong ticket this year. He asks for the workingmen's votes because he was once one of their number. This plea might prove effective under other circumstances, but workingmen are thinking more about the record of the Democratic party in the past, and what the party threaten to do in the future than they are of Mr. Howard's personal ambitions. They will pretty generally vote this year, not for men, but for what men represent. Mr. Howard is a very nice gentleman, but he is pledged to a policy that the workingmen of this country do not want carried out. Mr. Howard's party, says the agitation for cheap things, including cheap wages, has only begun. The cheap things will come from Europe free, the cheap wages will come with the endeavor of our manufacturers to compete with them. Mr. Howard's personal style of campaign was good enough when he was running for a purely local office, but now more vital considerations are at stake and the wage-workers know it. Besides, Captain Dovenor started in life just as Mr. Howard did, as a workingman, and so matters are equal on that score—more than equal, in fact, for Captain Dovenor will vote against the destruction of our tariff defenses, which protect American industries. He will be elected, and will carry Ohio county, and so will the whole Republican ticket.

TREASURY STATEMENT.

The Public Debt Increasing and a Deficit in Receipts.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 1.—The monthly treasury statement issued today shows that on October 31, 1894, the public debt less cash in the treasury amounted to $911,327,471, an increase for the month of $13,680,854.

The monthly treasury statement shows the total receipts during the month of October to have been $19,139,240 and the disbursements $32,718,030, having a deficit for the month of $13,578,790, and for the four months of the present fiscal year $14,353,539; of the receipts for October $11,062,118 was from customs, $6,463,438 from internal revenue and $683,683 from miscellaneous sources. Of the expenditures $11,053,357 was for pensions.

Look out for Democratic roorbacks, such as circulars and sensational publications in the Democratic organ intended to prejudice voters at the last minute against the Republican ticket. Late day publications of this nature will be the last resort of desperate party managers.

"Sham Reciprocity."

Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette.

The people of the United States are beginning to realize just how much "sham" there was in the reciprocity treaties entered into under the Harrison administration. The Democratic national convention denounced those treaties as "juggles," "pretense" and "sham," and when the party came into power it embraced the first favorable opportunity to destroy them. The large and profitable trade built up under those arrangements with Spanish-American countries, Cuba, Germany and other places, is likely to be largely reduced if not lost altogether. The action of the German government in closing its ports against American cattle and dressed meat has been received with "great surprise" by the department officials at Washington, and it is now understood that the real cause of the prohibition was the discrimination against German interests in the sugar schedule of the tariff, and that the objection on the ground of Texas cattle fever was a mere pretense on the part of the German authorities.

Desperate Democrats in Tucker.

Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer.

PARSONS, W. VA., Nov. 1.—The Democratic party in Tucker county is in sore straits, and is worse scared than ever before.

All negroes working in the county have been notified by the Democrats that they (the negroes) will be prosecuted if they attempt to vote, regardless of whether they have the right or not. This is only one of many mean, unfair and despicable tricks resorted to by Democrats here in the last days of the campaign in a vain attempt to snatch victory from certain defeat.
